Dear Julie,

We met with Undersecretary Grossman and discuss several matters, but mostly about long term solutions. In the short term, I am researching how many open possession of class D cases there are (pre-new law cases) that can be handled without testing. I continue to research how we could inform your office of pleas, so that you do not have to do the testing. If you could let me know how we could inform you of those cases, either through a docket number or police report ("cc") number, it would be most helpful. Maybe just the name is enough, although I would hate for there to be a mix up with people having the same name. The District Attorney has reach out to Chief Justice Johnson, to request an opportunity to speak to the first justices about prioritizing custody cases and asking for rush requests in only those cases. I will keep you apprised of these efforts.

I hope all is well with you. Thank you,

Dear Julie,

I hope you had a great weekend. Amongst other efforts, I am working on how we can notify you of pleas. We, typically, do not have the drug lab number associated with the case. If we give you a docket number or police report (cc) number, would that be sufficient information for you to find the drugs associated with the case?

Also, we are meeting with John Grossman on several matters, one of which being the issues we discussed. I'll let you know how that goes.

Thank you for your time,

Christina Miller
